STOCK BOARD FAVORS.

Dealing on Margins and How It Is Done Escentricities of Fortune in Brokers' Offices.

"We can't all win, you see," observed ominent dealer in stocks to a REPUBLICAN sporter. 'You see that little man yonder,' e continued, pointing to a gentleman of small ature, dressed in a suit of blue, and who preented a sad and reflective countenance.
"Well, he is the most successful operator

"Weil, he is the most successful operator a town somehow never mixes it nover see in speak to anyhody, but always wrapped that impenetrable mystery. Can't undersand it," and there settled upon the face of speaker a melancholy which said, "If I, w, only could guess the market every time." There is another man who wins,—just the position of the former, a leading "bear" and entity, "continued the speaker. "He, you will observe, is all animation." If animation is the rungic element to open so lockers of the golden goddens you all outd win," mildly put in the serific. "As no. But that man," returning to the st subject, "has pocketed profits amounting many housand dollars in the last six onties. Wonderfully shrowd operator." "How is it done?"
"Turely upon the margin plan-putting updiven per cent to cover a given number of ints on a given stock on the long or shorte, just as you may be dealing, and then wait the quotations of the stock you may be indiing.

"Who are the largest operators in the country on the margin plant"
"Well, one of the largest brokerage and commission firms which pay sarticular attention to this system of dealing is T. Brigham Bishop & Co., who have a large branch establishment in the Higgs Insurance building. No. Bill F. street. Hishop, the senior member of the house, is a marvelous organizer, and possessed of those qualities which our modern day calls shrewthers and tact, but which mean unlimited natural espabilities. I have watched his career during the last nine years, when he opened in conservative Booton, and through all his operations there is plainly visible a tharoughly organized and comprehensive system of management under a masterly control. "The centralizing of all transactions of their branch offices, some thrity-live or forty in number, at New York is one point in favor of their clients. They control over 1.500 miles of private swires, which is twice as extensive a telegraph system as any two brokerage firms in New York can show, reaching east 10 Bans or, Me., and west to Cieveland, Chio, touching all the prominent cities between those two points. Their daily commissions must be simply enormous."

Going into the office of Brigham Bishop &

ing all the prominent cities between those two points. Their daily commissions must be simply enormous."

Going into the office of Brigham Bishop & Co., No. 1831 F afreet, the reporter mot the manager, Mr. J. Edward Gove, an energetic and allable gentleman, who at once impresses the stranger as the master-mind of the place, with a fund of invaluable experience and information in his business.

"Tell me, if you will, something of the amount of your business and how it is done."

"The amount depends upon the condition of the markots. That legitimately inherited faver (which we have all possessed, to a greater or less extent, since the days of Alchiades) for mild speculation, upon a thoroughly practical and sound basis, is very largely governed by the condition in which speculators find their favorite stocks. You take it throughout our several offices, and we probably can represent a greater variety of dispositions for stock dealing than any other half dozon commission and brokerage establishments in New York city. The popularity of our system, which after all the sum of different from that adopted and in use by the most conservative houses in the counitry, the in the facilities we give all dealers, and particularly small operators, and our low charge of commission. Our clients receive the same treatment at our lands that the largest operators of Wall street, be they 'bulls' or 'bests,' get from their brokers. We buy and sell shocks, also sell and deliver the same when desired to the extent of a million.

"Then you are prepared to accept any deal?"

"I will place with my house in New York any legitimate doal which can be placed on this or any other market in the United States. All deals go direct to T. Brigham Bishop & Co., of New York, and that is the urn the public are dealing with when making contracts with me."

"What about sudden fortunes? Are they made as frequently as they are reported."

are dealing with when making contracts with me.

"What about sudden fortunes? Are they made as frequently as they are reported?"

"To make large fortunes on the turn of a stock requires large capital and a steady nerve. We don't look for it. Dealing in stocks is simply a legitimate pastine with the majority of operators. They do not look for a turn in their favor of more than a few hundreds, and that's what gives the delightful exhibitation to stock speculation. Then, again, there is no worry or nervousness about the transaction. As a rule, our clients represent a class of merchants and dealors who care little one way or the other which way the market turns for a few hundred, and are ready by make money on either a decline or rise in stocks."

"Do ladies operator."

"Frequently; in New York and occasionally here in Washington I have known instances where lady operators have accumulated bytunes in stock speculation. They are of a class, however, that seem to have a natural tact and taste for this line of operations."
